

What is fat loss?

Fat loss means gradually reducing stored body fat. It happens over time when your body uses more energy than it gets from food. But you don't need to starve yourself or make food miserable to get healthier.

How can you work towards it?

- Eat balanced meals: include protein, carbs, fruit/vegetables and some healthy fats.
- Stay active: walking, sport, cycling or other activities all count.
- Keep strength training: resistance training helps you build and maintain muscle.
- Drink water regularly and keep a normal eating routine.
- Get enough sleep: recovery matters too.
- Be consistent: results take time, so don't judge your progress after a few days.

How to Start a Beginner Cut?

1. Know your starting point
2. Use a moderate calorie deficit
3. Keep protein high enough
4. Keep lifting
5. Give it time